

Faculty Position – Structural Engineering

Southern Illinois University Edwardsville. The Department of Civil Engineering is seeking to fill one tenure track position in Civil Engineering at the Assistant Professor level to begin August 2012. Associate professor-level appointments may be considered for candidates with exceptional qualifications. The successful candidate must have the ability to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in civil engineering with emphasis in structural engineering, conduct research in civil engineering, and participate in service activities. Candidates with a background in bridge engineering are preferred. The candidate should have an educational background that would permit licensure as a professional engineer. In addition, the candidate should hold at least one degree in civil engineering or structural engineering and be nearing completion of or already possess a doctoral degree in civil engineering or a closely related field.

As evidence of SIUE's primary mission of excellence in undergraduate education, the University's senior assignment program has been ranked by U.S. News & World Report to be among the top such programs in all universities in the country for 5 consecutive years. The University occupies an attractive, wooded, 2660-acre campus about 25 miles from St. Louis, MO. Civil Engineering at SIUE confers B.S. and M.S. degrees and has a cooperative doctoral program with SIU Carbondale. Faculty members are actively engaged in research.
